Table of Contents

Bayesian Kernel Methods for Natural Language Processing
  Daniel Beck ................................................................. 1

Extracting Temporal and Causal Relations between Events
  Paramita Mirza ............................................................. 10

Towards a discourse relation-aware approach for Chinese-English machine translation
  Frances Yung ............................................................. 18

Analyzing Positions and Topics in Political Discussions of the German Bundestag
  Cäcilia Zirn ............................................................... 26

A Mapping-Based Approach for General Formal Human Computer Interaction Using Natural Language
  Vincent Letard, Sophie Rosset and Gabriel Illouz .................... 34

An Exploration of Embeddings for Generalized Phrases
  Wenpeng Yin and Hinrich Schütze .................................... 41

Learning Grammar with Explicit Annotations for Subordinating Conjunctions
  Dongchen Li, Xiantao Zhang and Xihong Wu .......................... 48

Going beyond sentences when applying tree kernels
  Dmitry Ilvovsky .......................................................... 56

Multi-document summarization using distortion-rate ratio
  Ulukbek Attokurov and Ulug Bayazit .................................. 64

Disambiguating prepositional phrase attachment sites with sense information captured in contextualized distributional data
  Clayton Greenberg .......................................................... 71

Open Information Extraction for Spanish Language based on Syntactic Constraints
  Alisa Zhila and Alexander Gelbukh .................................... 78

Improving Text Normalization via Unsupervised Model and Discriminative Reranking
  Chen Li and Yang Liu ...................................................... 86

Semi-Automatic Development of KurdNet, The Kurdish WordNet
  Purya Aliabadi .............................................................. 94